

DUPLICATING SPECIAL COLLECTIONS MATERIALS
LSU Libraries Special Collections
Information, Instructions, Pricing
Effective December 15, 2016

All duplication of Special Collections materials requires prior approval of a library staff member and must be placed through our Special Collections Request System (SCRS).

Published materials (books, journals, etc.): Self-service photocopying of books is allowed if condition, value, age, and/or copyright restrictions do not apply. Patrons should request permission before any self-service copying takes place. If the book is at risk of damage or already in poor physical condition, other options may be used to provide copies, such as scanning or digital photography. Self-service photography (no flash), with prior approval, requires a form provided by the reference staff member on duty.

Manuscript materials: Manuscript items must remain in their folders and in order. We do not allow self-service photocopying or the use of personal scanners to scan manuscript materials. With prior approval, self-service photography (no flash) may be permitted.

Photographic materials: Photographs must not be removed from their folders or protective sleeves. Reproductions of photographs may be obtained only through staff-produced digital scans or photographic prints. Alternately, with prior approval, self-service photography (no flash) is allowed. We do not allow photocopying of photographs of any kind, nor is the use of personal scanners to scan photographs permitted.

Fees: Fees for duplication services are listed on the back of this sheet.

PERMISSION TO PUBLISH

Reproductions of materials from Special Collections do not include permission to publish or exhibit. All reproductions are provided for personal research or private study purposes only. It is the responsibility of individual users to determine whether their proposed use is lawful or if permission of the copyright holder(s) is required. Users assume all responsibility for their uses.
