BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

Marjorie Washburn Barbari was a native of Clearwater, Florida and a resident of Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Before moving to Baton Rouge, she was admitted to a psychiatric hospital in Florida. She was married to Emile Barbari (1916-1999). She wrote poetry on themes taken from life, religion, and nature. Several of her poems were printed in various periodicals. In addition to her poetry and other creative writings, she also kept a daily journal, which she titled To Be Poor, from October 1979 to August 2002. She died on March 25, 2007.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Papers consist of correspondence, photographs, printed materials (chiefly newspaper clippings), poetry manuscripts, and magnetic tape recordings of poems read by Marjorie Washburn Barbari. There are also manuscripts for other writings, including aphorisms, reflections, short stories, novels, a novelette, and Barbari's daily journal titled To Be Poor.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

Series I. Correspondence, 1953, 1968-2002, undated

Correspondence consists chiefly of letters written to Marjorie Washburn Barbari from her friends and family, especially her cousin Winona Foster. Some letters are from publishing companies responding to Barbari's writing submittals. Most letters pertain to family news and her writings. Of interest are several letters (February-August 1979) by Barbari describing her recording project and an ensuing disagreement she had with the State Library of Louisiana. Also of interest are letters from a Vietnamese immigrant named Le Van Nhan to Barbari, describing Nhan's life in California (December 1979-January 1982).

Series II. Writings, 1970-2002, undated

Writings consist chiefly of poetry manuscripts including Barbari's multi-volume One Woman's Life poetry collection and many collections of religious poetry. Also included with the poetry manuscripts are newspaper and periodical clippings of published versions of several of Barbari's poems and magnetic tape reels of Barbari reading poetry from One Woman's Life. Other manuscript writings include novels, a novelette, short stories, aphorisms, reflections, and a daily journal titled To Be Poor (October 1797-August 2002). In the journal's preface, Barbari mentions that she was twenty-two when she was first admitted to a psychiatric hospital in Florida and describes her time there.

Series III. Printed and Photographic Materials, circa 1926-1928, 1941-1946, 1952-1992, undated

Printed materials of interest include the book cover of Barbari's From the Depths to the Heights. Photographic materials include prints of Barbari and her husband Emile, their family members, and their homes in Baton Rouge.
