BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

The Turnbull and Bowman families were cotton and sugar planters with properties in West Feliciana, Iberville, and Pointe Coupee Parishes of Louisiana. Daniel Turnbull (1796-1861), son of English immigrant, John Turnbull, founded Rosedown Plantation in 1835. He also operated Styopa, Catalpa, Middleplace, Hazelwood, Grove, Inheritance, Woodlawn, and De Soto Plantations. He lived on Rosedown Plantation with his wife, Martha Hilliard Barrow Turnbull (1809-1896), and their children, James Daniel (1836-1843), Daniel, William B. (1829-1856), and Sarah (1831-1914). Martha, an avid horticulturist, established the extensive gardens at Rosedown.

The Turnbull and Bowman families were connected by the marriage of Sarah Turnbull to James Pirrie Bowman (1832-1927). James was the son of Eliza Pirrie and her second husband, William R. Bowman (1800-1835), rector of Grace Episcopal Church in St. Francisville. Eliza and William also had a daughter, Isabel (1876-1951) who married William Wilson Matthews. Eliza's first marriage to her cousin, Robert Hilliard Barrow (1795-1823), produced a son, Robert H. Barrow, Jr. (b. 1824). In 1840 Eliza married her third husband, Henry Lyons, a lawyer from Philadelphia. They had three children, Cora, Lucie, and Eliza. The children's half sister, Isabel, cared for them after their mother's death in 1851. Lyons practiced law in West Feliciana with F. A. Boyle. He was also associated with John Bennett Dawson (1800-1845), a relative (uncle?) of Martha Turnbull. Dawson, owner of Wyoming Plantation in West Feliciana Parish, was a member of the Louisiana Legislature from 1826 to 1828, a Parish Judge, from 1827 to 1828, a candidate for governor in 1834, and a member of the U.S. Congress from 1843 to 1845. In the 1840s Lyons traveled to San Francisco where he speculated in real estate and later served on the Supreme Court of California.

James P. Bowman operated Frogmoor and Bayou Grosse Tete plantations in Pointe Coupee Parish. James, Sarah, and their family lived on Rosedown Plantation with Martha Turnbull. Sarah's children included Martha (b. 1858), Eliza (1859 or 1860-1907, called "Sly" and "Lilie," she married George Shotwell), Sarah (1869-1952, called "Sadie"), Daniel T. (1862-1900), Anna K. (1864-1887, she married Mr. Fort), Nina (1869-1955), James P. Bowman, Jr. (b. 1869), Corrie (1872-1929), and Isabel Matthews (1876-1951). The Forts resided on Catalpa Plantation. Nina Bowman ran a small nursery business in the 1920s. She sold azaleas, camellias, and other plants. Daniel T. Bowman enlisted in the Army with the 1st Montana Regiment Volunteers, Co. C., on July 15, 1898, and was stationed in Manila. James P. Bowman shared an interest in Cuba with John Sidney Thrasher (1817-1879), author and editor.

Note: For more biographical information, see the Biographical/Historical Notes of the inventories for the Turnbull-Bowman Family Papers (Mss.4452) and the Turnbull-Allain Family Papers (Mss.4261), Louisiana and Lower Mississippi Valley Collections, LSU Libraries.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Correspondence, plantation management papers, financial papers, legal documents, personal papers, and printed and graphic materials spanning from 1797 to 1955 document the lives of members of the Turnbull, Pirrie, Lyons, Bowman, and to a lesser extent, the Barrow, Stirling, and Fort families. Correspondence discusses plantation, financial and social matters and includes antebellum letters. The bulk of the correspondence is of Sarah T. Bowman and her children. Plantation records of William B. Turnbull and James P. Bowman include slave lists and plantation diaries which document Frogmoor and Rosedown Plantations. The diaries contain lists of slaves and details of plantation management. Financial papers include factors' statements, mostly of Daniel Turnbull and James P. Bowman, which document sugar and cotton produced on Rosedown, Middleplace, Inheritance, Hazelwood, and other plantations. Among the financial papers are receipts and statements for goods and services. Legal documents of the Turnbull, Pirrie, Lyons, Matthews, Barrow, Bowman, and Fort families consist mostly of land title documents and succession papers. Legal papers of John B. Dawson, a parish judge and relative of the Barrow family, are present. Personal papers and printed and graphic materials reflect the lives and interests of family members, particularly the Bowmans.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

Series I, Correspondence, 1799-1955 (1.5 linear feet)

Summary: Correspondence of the Turnbull, Pirrie, Lyons, Barrow, and Bowman families. The bulk of the correspondence is of Sarah T. Bowman and her children. Arranged by personal names and by date.

Among the earliest correspondence in the collection are letters of John and Catherine Turnbull. A letter (1799) from Thomas Durnford (1762-1826) to John discusses attempts to recover two runaway slaves. Durnford immigrated from Ringwood, England in 1776. Letters (1837-1896) of Daniel and Martha Turnbull discuss social and economic matters. Included are letters (1870) to Martha from George H. Miller, overseer of Styopa Plantation. Two letters (187-) from W. D. Winter to Martha relate to the destruction of property on Styopa and De Soto Plantations during the Civil War. Testimony of white and African-American witnesses is discussed, with notes on the lineage and ownership of former slaves.

Letters of the Pirrie family relate to personal and financial matters and the education of Ruffin Gray Stirling, a relative (nephew?) of James Pirrie. A letter (1851) from a Stirling family member to James P. Bowman reports the death of James' mother, Eliza B. Lyons. A letter (1814) from Ruffin Gray, Jr. of Lexington, Ky., describes letters he received which contain accounts of the British siege of New Orleans.

Letters (one oversize) of Eliza B. Lyons relate to family and economic matters. Some letters (1826-1828) discuss the sale of Bayou Boeuf Plantation and slaves belonging to the estate of Robert H. Barrow, Eliza's late husband. Letters (1841, 1850, undated) to Eliza from Henry Lyons describe economic conditions in San Francisco during the Gold Rush. Letters (1837, 1840) from John Bennett Dawson to Lyons, William Barrow, and others, are included. One concerns the commission of a portrait of Dawson by artist Wm. H. Contant. Dawson was the son of Sarah Barrow (1773-1816) and was under the guardianship of William Barrow (1765-1823) after her death. Letters to Lyons from family members include letters (1851) from Isabel Matthews, the daughter of Eliza Lyons and her second husband, William R. Bowman. Isabel took care of Lyons' children after Eliza died in 1851. Letters (1851, undated) from William Wilson Matthews to Isabel before their marriage are included. Letters (1840-1857) of Alexander Barrow and Robert H. Barrow (b. 1824) discuss financial matters and plantation management. Letters from Robert to James P. Bowman relate to mutual financial interests and Rosale Plantation.

Correspondence of James P. Bowman (Eliza's son) relates to plantation management, to financial interests, and to family matters. Letters (1828) from James' father, Jacob Bowman, to his brother, William R. Bowman, discuss business and land ownership and offer advice about religion and life. Other items include letters from James' schoolmates from Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut, and from various friends and relatives. A letter (1854) from John Sidney Thrasher (1817-1879, author and editor) to James requests that he read and comment on his essay Cuba and Louisiana. A letter (1869) from James to Henry Lyons concerns money he inherited from Eliza.

James Bowman's correspondence with plantation overseers discusses the management of Frogmoor, Bayou Grosse Tete, Oakley, and Rosedown Plantations. Letters (1857-1858) from George W. Woodruff, overseer, describe affairs on Frogmoor Plantation. A letter (1862) from A. Heise (a later overseer of Frogmoor, and of Rosedown Plantation for Daniel Turnbull) relates the story of a messenger who lay in a ditch to "escape Yankee bullets." Letters (1855-1856) from S. B. Raby, overseer of a plantation at Bayou Grosse Tete, describe his management and protest his termination as overseer. James Bowman's response (1856) complains of Raby's conduct with the slaves.

James' letters (1856-1865) to his wife, Sarah T. Bowman, are included. Most of Sarah's correspondence (1852-191-) concerns family, social, and economic matters. Included are letters (1852-1860) of Mary Jackson, a school friend. One discusses the ownership of slaves at the settlement of an estate. A letter (1874) from Sarah to her daughter Eliza recounts an uprising of African-Americans in Bayou Sara. A letter (1896) from Sarah to her son, Daniel, describes Martha Turnbull's aging and comments on her work in the gardens at Rosedown Plantation. Correspondence (two items oversize) of Bowman family children include letters of Nina Bowman (sometimes called "Nix") which relate to her horticultural business. She cultivated and sold azaleas, camellias, and other plants. Letters to Nina (Nov.-Dec., 1925) from "Mary" in Natchez concern arrangements to sell Audubon books which Nina had in her possession. Letters (1898-1899) of Daniel T. Bowman describe his experiences while stationed in Manila.

Series II, Plantation management papers, 1857-[1880s?] (.5 linear feet)

Summary: Plantation records of William B. Turnbull and James P. Bowman with slave lists and plantation diaries for Frogmoor and Rosedown plantations.

Two lists (185-) of slaves of William B. Turnbull record their ages and monetary valuations. Two plantation diaries (1867, 1858-1859) maintained by George W. Woodruff record activities on Frogmoor Plantation. The diaries include lists of slaves, lists of deaths and births on the plantation, lists of provisions and clothing issued to slaves, and daily accounts of plantation activities including work, illness, weather, and other agricultural news.

A Rosedown Plantation diary (1858-1867) kept by James P. Bowman records shoes, cloth, and provisions supplied to slaves (and later, laborers). The diary records sales of sugar and molasses (1858), sugar grown and ground (1859-1861), and the cotton crop (1865) at Rosedown. Bowman's account book [1880s?] lists supplies issued to field hands. A "sketch" (undated) of Rosedown Plantation prepared for the estate of Sarah T. Bowman shows property lines of Rosedown and surrounding properties, and Bayou Sara.

Newspaper clippings which were pasted into a Frogmoor Plantation diary (1858-1859) and into
